

CORE CLASS COMMITMENT PAGE

CORE Classes are still new to some homeschoolers, so in order that we have the smoothest start for all of our classes, each member of the program should understand their part. Each part is very important, and if one member does not fulfill his/her part, then it will not be a success. Students and parents should read the following list of responsibilities carefully. I am confident and excited about playing my part this coming school year. If you are confident and excited about doing your part as well, please sign your names at the bottom of the page.

CORE Class Responsibilities:

Student's: to come to class with all necessary materials, to participate in class, to do all outside-of-class assignments, to get help from parents or teacher when needed, so that you can complete assignments on time; to check and correct some of your work, when asked; to show respect to all class members.

Parents': to purchase curriculum and supplies on class list, to minimize tardiness and absences, to contact the teacher about absences, to encourage the student to work as independently as possible, but to help the student with assigned work when there are questions you can answer, to check some of the assigned work, when asked; to pay fees by the first class of each month, if paying monthly.

Teacher's: to provide a curriculum and supply list, to provide class materials not listed, to provide a creative, classroom, learning environment; to assign daily and long term projects to complement our in-class learning, to be available by phone, 278-4125, or email, john_bev@butler-bremer.com, when students or parents have questions; to correct and evaluate some assignments, tests and quizzes, as well as all long term projects; to offer parents a verbal progress report at the 1st and 3rd quarters, and provide a written report of students progress at the 2nd and 4th quarters, if desired.
